Meet at Penlee House Gallery, Penzance, at 10.30 for a 45 minute guided tour of the exhibition of the work of Robert Borlase Smart. Followed by time to browse on your own, and finishing with a optional group lunch in the Gallery's Orangery Cafe at approx 12.30

Robert Borlase Smart (1881-1947) studied at Plymouth College of Art and the Royal College of Art and moved to St Ives in 1913 to study under Julius Olsson. He served in WWI, and the exhibition includes some of his war drawings. He settled in St Ives after the war, becoming a key member of the community. Best known as a coastal and marine painter, he also designed posters to promote tourism in the town.

He championed young "modern" artists often in the face of opposition from the more traditional St Ives painters, and tutored, amongst others, Peter Lanyon. The exhibition also includes works by Lanyon, Olsson, and Borlase Smart's close friend and founder of the St Ives School of Painting, Leonard Fuller.
